How can I achieve this? A: A simple way would be to set the dateFormat option to "dd-mm-yyyy hh:ii" and format the date when it comes to JS after initializing the datetimepicker. Like this: $('.datetimepicker').datetimepicker({ dateFormat: 'dd-mm-yyyy hh:ii', minDate: new Date(), maxDate: new Date(new Date().getFullYear(), new Date().getMonth()+1, new Date().getDate(), 23, 59, 59) }); var date = new Date(); var formattedDate = date.get

It is known that problems can be solved by mounting a parking management apparatus in a parking space to manage parking spaces. There is a parking management apparatus which uses an IC (integrated circuit) card (refer to Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open Publication No. H08-032686, for example) as a unit which can read and write data stored in the IC card, which is referred to as a smart parking management apparatus. An IC card stores ID (identification information) of a vehicle, a management content for the vehicle, a parking space area, a unit price of parking space, and a like. In the parking management apparatus, when data is read from an IC card by a card reader, the read data is sent to a management server via a communication line. Further, data is stored in the IC card in accordance with the management content from the management server, and the parking management apparatus manages the parking spaces in accordance with the management content. Therefore, a vehicle can park in a parking space in accordance with the parking management content. Since the IC card is a so-called one-way communication card which writes data from the management server to the IC card, a parking space management content can be changed by a user. For this reason, there is a concern that a malicious third party may illegally use the parking management content. In order to solve this problem, there is a known technique in which the management server encrypts the management content for the IC card by using a public key, and then transmits the encrypted management content to the parking management apparatus. Here, an IC card reads data in the IC card by using a card reader, and the read data is sent to the management server via a communication line. In order to encrypt the management content for the IC card in accordance with the public key, the management server decrypts the management content for the IC card by using a private key, and transmits the decrypted management content to the parking management apparatus. When the parking management apparatus receives the encrypted management content from the management server, the management server and the parking management apparatus establish a key generation means and perform processing in accordance with the processing flow described below. The key generation means first determines whether or not the user ID and the user ID included in the management content for the IC card are correct, and then generates a public key for each user if the user ID
