Acute toxicity of chlorpyrifos and carbaryl has been evaluated in mice. Sub-lethal doses of these pesticides have been shown to produce significant changes in the acetylcholinesterase activity of various brain regions. Enzyme activity was altered by a decrease in the total activity of the enzyme and by an increase in the activity of the high molecular weight fraction. These changes in enzyme activity persisted beyond the acute toxicity period.Virtual DJ12 Users Ever wanted to have a fully automatic mix, with your favourite playlists?
